Questions You Should Ask Before You Hire a Bird Control Specialist

If you are having a problem with pest birds you will need to hire a specialist to help you deal with the problem. We are often asked about how one should go about hiring specialist in bird control and pest bird management. Bird control is a very different kind of situation than pest control and you should hire a firm that has extensive experience dealing with bird problems. We have put together the following questions that can be of some help in evaluating a company. Contact us if we can be of further assistance.

- What Safety Equipment do you use to ensure fall prevention?
- How do you handle health and safety issues during clean up?
- How will you adapt and conform to our safety protocols?
- Do you use lethal bait?
- Do you have a dedicated team and will they work at night to minimize disruption of our business activities?
- How do you handle non-target species?
- Are you OSHA certified to work on a lift higher than 25 feet?
- Is my pest bird a protected species?
- What steps do you take to comply with applicable law and the Federal Endangered Species Act?
- Do I need a permit for this work?
- If so will you help me secure it?
- What tools and equipment do you have for doing bird work?
